DISCLAIMER

This list is not legal advice nor does it constitute an agreement by the Office of Injured Employee Counsel (OIEC) to represent or assist you in your lawsuit. For legal advice on pursuing your Workers' Compensation lawsuit in civil court, please contact an attorney. Under Texas Labor Code § 404.105, OIEC Ombudsmen cannot provide dispute assistance after an adverse decision has been issued by the Appeals Panel of the Texas Department of Insurance, Division of Workers' Compensation (DWC).

REMEMBER

However, if your injury was an occupational disease, the petition must be filed in the county where you lived on the date disability began. Suit must be filed no later than the 45th day after the date on which DWC mailed you the decision of the Appeals Panel.

+ You are required to file a lawsuit, serve the opposing parties and provide DWC & your insurance carrier with a copy of the lawsuit at the same time, as provided in Texas Labor Code §410.253.

1 Locate Your County's District Court

Your lawsuit MUST be filed in a court of the county where you resided when the injury or death occurred. However, if your injury was an occupational disease, the petition must be filed in the county where you lived on the date disability began.

If you file the lawsuit in another county, the court will transfer the lawsuit to the correct county.

2 Begin the Process of Filing the Lawsuit

You are responsible for paying all fees related to the filing of a lawsuit. If you can't afford the filing fees, an Indigency or Pauper's Affidavit (affidavit by party unable to afford costs of an action) may be available to you. Ask the court clerk for more information on requirements and availability.

3 Become Familiar with all the Rules and Laws that Apply in Texas Cases

Lawsuits are guided by the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure (for all cases in Texas) and local court rules (specific rules of that court). Make sure to ask the court clerk for a copy of local rules. Most courthouses have a law library where you can find this information. Ask court staff where the law library is located.

You can find information about the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, Texas Rules of Evidence, and the Texas Labor Code by going online to the Supreme Court of Texas website at : <http://www.txcourts.gov/rules-forms/>.

Also, there are special rules for Workers' Compensation lawsuits. These rules are found in the Texas Labor Code and the Government Code. You can access this information online by visiting the Texas Legislature website at <http://www.statutes.legis.state.tx.us/> and the Texas Department of Insurance, Division of Workers' Compensation website at <http://www.tdi.texas.gov/wc/index.html>.

4 Become Familiar with Court Staff

Court staff may provide you with valuable information if you are confused by the process. Make sure you ask:

1. Where to file your lawsuit;
2. How to file a suit - Original Petition
3. For local volunteer attorney groups;
4. What is citation and service of process;

5 Keep Copies of Everything

It is very important that you keep a copy of your documents related to your lawsuit. It is just as important as keeping all of your documents in one place.

6 Keep a Calendar

Keep track of deadlines and court dates. If you forget to attend a court hearing when scheduled, your lawsuit may be dismissed.

7 Read Everything

Make sure that you read and understand everything you receive in the mail. If you have doubts, ask questions of the Court staff, attorneys, and staff from legal aid services.

If the process becomes overwhelming, go back to # 1, above and seek the assistance of an attorney.
